

Tell a Colorful Story

Educate future customers about wood poles and electricity with this fun, informative coloring book

Enhance your community affairs activities and offer a positive story about utilities and wood poles with a 16-page coloring book designed for school-age children.

Published by the North American Wood Pole Council, the coloring book explains how poles bring electricity to homes, schools and businesses, while stressing important safety messages.

BONUS! Coloring books can be customized with your utility or company information, on the inside cover page or back page. Custom color books are available for less than a dollar each for 1,000 or more copies. Quantities of 500 and 750 are also available at a discounted price.

For more information on a custom edition with utility or company information, contact Butch Bernhardt at NAWPC, email: butch@wwpi.org.
